

Creating value by developing SKILLS AND INSIGHTS

Doing better work in the modern world

No matter the place of work—government or the private sector—the challenge of delivering goods and services, or policies and programs, has never been more complicated. Success demands the skills and insights that enable us to define problems carefully, devise practical and feasible solutions that create value—and then communicate effectively in an environment cluttered with white noise.

Ethos CRS specialises in four areas

The work of Ethos CRS encompasses four areas of expertise: corporate communications; policy; regulation; and leadership, teams and performance.

Many organisations want, for example, to communicate more effectively, or write clearer documents, or review governance arrangements, or audit regulatory practice. Our guarantee is that we can help you to make the changes that tangibly improve performance and create value.

We build capability or provide expert services

We work as your partner by either building the skills of your staff or by offering direct services and an extra, helping hand. We work with you to make your organisation work better by offering the required technical expertise, insights and experience. We focus on organisational capability by devising customised interventions that generate a return on your investment.

Simple, easy steps to create public value

Ethos CRS has worked with more than 90 agencies all around Australia and understands the challenges they face. So, to improve outcomes in your organisation and build the skills of your professionals, contact our Director of Training, Graham Templeton, on 02 6247 2225 or service@ethoscrs.com.au.

Our areas of expertise: how can we help you?
